Audio Role Instructions

Your notes should be 2-4 single-spaced pages, with timestamps at the beginning of every line. You'll do recording and most timestamp note-taking during the meeting, but we recommend you spend a total of 30-60 minutes checking for accuracy and cleaning up notes/timestamps after the meeting.

Please note the meeting's start and end time with timestamps. Include any notes about audio quality and challenges at the top of the notes. Include timestamps for items that correlate to the meeting agenda, such as roll call, public comment, each agenda item, etc. Also, include timestamps every five minutes as you record; this makes it easier to double-check a quote or discussion item. We recommend a minimum of five timestamps, with more depending on the length of the meeting.

Use this timestamp format: [HH:MM:SS:]

[00:10:00] would indicate 10 minutes into your recording.

See below for more specific instructions and links to helpful tips from the Documenters Field Guide.

You will have to submit a Checklist about your meeting when you turn in your assignment on Documenters.org. We have included a copy of the Checklist in this document, in case it's easier to record information in real time (start/end time, # of people in attendance, etc).

2. Check your tech: Make sure your devices are charged or plugged in, and that you have enough memory to record the audio. (Get tips)
3. During the meeting: Focus on agenda items, debate, decisions and details like ordinance numbers, names and titles. Collect all available handouts for reference to make this easier (Get tips)
4. Revision: Clean up and fact-check your audio timestamps afterward so that your reader can make sense of them (Get tips)

Follow-Up Questions & Observations

Did you experience any challenges while recording audio for this meeting? What are you left wondering? What observations or learnings are you taking away from this meeting? What do you feel, think or predict?

- The noise level in the small room, and activity in the hallway, could be distracting at times, and most speakers were facing the front of the room, not toward the documenters. There was one speaker who had difficulty with her equipment which made it difficult to hear her without interruptions.
- Three questions/concerns that were not resolved during the meeting: 1.) Meeting minutes were available after each meeting with the exception of the one in June. I requested a copy of those minutes after letting the board know they were not available on the website, but have yet to receive them. A couple of references were made to the “previous” meeting which was June 2024, and it was not clear what was being referenced, 2.) Two of the cases reviewed were troubling and need follow up since they were not resolved at the meeting, and 3.) There were no other members of the press present other than myself and Franklin who was live tweeting. The issues being discussed were of great public interest, particularly when civilian deaths were involved. Where is the other media coverage?
- The conference room at the Southside Community Center was cramped for the number of people in attendance. It was somewhat difficult to hear, and was 12 minutes late getting started due to many attendees coming in late. The importance of the information shared at these meetings cannot be overstated; the reputation of IMPD is affected as is the faith in law enforcement for community members. Even the cases that took the least time to review were troubling due to language and treatment of those in need of police assistance. It appears civil rights were violated in a few of the cases.

- Body camera footage was shown for 3 of the cases being reviewed, which proved very helpful in understanding the circumstances of each, but disturbing since the behavior of the officers in question did not seem to fit the situation. They knew their body cameras were on, but continued to act in a less than professional manner.
- One family of 5 was in attendance, and spoke about the loss of their son last December. It was heart wrenching. Hearing the details on what a nightmare their lives have been since the accident was moving, and although respectful to the board, there was no mistaking their anger in the aftermath. They are still awaiting answers and asking for the officers involved to be dealt with accordingly.
- This meeting was eye-opening. I was impressed at the level of detail that each case received. However, I was disappointed in the apathy and lack of professionalism from some of our officers. The public needs to know how this process works, and deserves to know the outcome of these cases.
